N. H. TRAIN CREW MUTINIES

Every One on the 5:05 From Providence Quit at Mansfield Except Engineer

A train crew mutinied on the New Haven road today. Between the cold snap and ramshackle equipment's conditions proved too much even for the patient and over-worked employees, some of whom defiantly joined the thousands of weary, disgruntled passengers in revolt.

The crew on the train which left Providence at 5:05 a. m., bound for Boston, quit at Mansfield, where the cold snap and ramshackle equipment's conditions proved too much even for the patient and over-worked employees, some of whom defiantly joined the thousands of weary, disgruntled passengers in revolt.

There was a council of war. The engineer pleaded without avail. When the train limped into South station at 5:20, after having taken four hours and fifteen minutes to cover forty-four miles, the engine was the only one in command, and was the only one in command, and was the only one in command.

What the passengers said wouldn't look nice in print. The journey was made in fits and starts, with long periods when it seemed that the old locomotive had breathed its last.

SLAYER OF POLISH PRESIDENT IN COURT

Warsaw, Poland, Dec. 29 (By telegraphic News Service).—Józef Nowinski, assassin of the late Gabriel Narutowicz, President of Poland, was arraigned today in the civil court of justice.

At first Nowinski was said to be insane, but since his arrest he has appeared to be rational. His friends declare that his mind was upset by Poland's political troubles.

Grid Stars Die in Auto Crash

Woodbury, N. J., Dec. 29.—Alexander Wray, center of the University of Pennsylvania football team of 1918, and William "Big" Brown of Lafayette, high school football of 1921, were killed at North Woodbury, when their auto was struck by an electric train.

Miss Catherine Johnson, eighteen, of Philadelphia, and Miss Elizabeth Price, eighteen, of Washington, D. C., narrowly escaped death through heroism of the athletes who sacrificed their own lives to open the doors of the car so the girls could jump out.

HELD FOR RANSOM RETURNED TO FATHER

Detroit, Dec. 29.—Eight-year-old Mary Giovannangeli, kidnapped eight days ago and held for a ransom of $25,000, was returned to her home today less than twelve hours after her father, Nicholas Giovannangeli, East Side banker, had reported her disappearance.

She was brought to within half a block of her home. There a man helped her from an automobile and greeted her with "chump home and don't be afraid of the dark." She had not been harmed.

SMASHER OF 500 WINDOWS CAUGHT BY POLICE

Boston's "half-brick" burglar was captured today.

His name, police say, is Edward Anderson of the Bowery.

New York.

They believe he has broken nearly 500 windows in Boston, the past year, and stolen thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry from stores and homes.

Anderson was arrested on Tremont street by Patrolman Francis C. McInerney of the Lagrange street station. In his pocket was a half-brick wrapped in a newspaper.

Further investigation showed that Anderson had been in the city for some time.

A pair of cut links bearing the initials "M. J. T." were in his pocket.

BORDMAN HALL ENDS HIS LIFE

Former Boston Public Official Shoots Himself in His Brookline Home

Bordman Hall, former public official in Boston, prominent corporation lawyer and trustee of many estates, committed suicide today at his home, No. 1876 Beacon street, Brookline, owing to failing health.

He shot himself through the mouth.

He used a .25-caliber revolver. He died within a few minutes. He was sixty-six years of age.

Mrs. Hall was in the kitchen when she heard a report. She hastened to her husband's room on the second landing and found him bleeding and unconscious.

Dr. Frederick Jones of No. 43 Corey road, an old friend of Mr. Hall's, was summoned, but life was extinct when he arrived.

Dr. Jones said the bullet had passed through Mr. Hall's mouth and brain. He notified Medical Examiner William P. Maize, who ordered the body removed to a local undertaker, where an autopsy will be performed later today.

John Long, secretary to Mr. Hall, said today:

"Mr. Hall had not been ill."

CAPE CROWD ON WATCH TO RAID RUM SHIP

Provincetown, Dec. 29.—Two hundred Cape Codders, including several women, clustered on the sands at Race Point coast guard station today and hopefully watched the white-keyed British schooner Annie L. Spindler, driven ashore by the storm and resting on the rocks and sand halfway between high and low water marks.

Captain H. L. Collins of the coast guard station watched the crowd and the schooner vigilantly.

"They have a pretty long in their eyes," quoth the captain, referring to the interested spectators.

For, according to searight report, there were 600 cases of whiskey on the schooner.

TO PUT GUARD ABOARD

Capt. Collins planned to go aboard the Spindler at low tide, take possession and put a guard over the captain, especially the whiskey.

"Need a guard all right," quoth the searight captain.

Meanwhile he was expecting Federal agents from Boston to arrive and relieve him of the task of guarding the schooner and liquor. Boston had been notified by Deputy Customs Inspector James Alwood at Provincetown, who had been told.

GIRL CLERK'S SCREAMS FOIL $10,000 HOLDUP OF PAYROLL

For the first time since the war the treasury on the second floor of the State House is under special guard.

Three State detectives paced the corridor in front of the State Treasurer's office today.

The vaults in the treasury contain millions of dollars in addition to State funds on deposit in local banks.

The extraordinary precautions have been taken, it is said, because of an attempted payroll robbery which occurred yesterday in the State House.

In addition to the three men on guard outside the treasurer's office, one man is stationed in the office, guarding the vaults, and several others are circulating through the building and watching all exits and entrances, including the back of the State House.

The State vaults contain $40,000,000 in securities, of which $20,000,000 are negotiable and $20,000,000 are cash.

All the detectives on guard and working throughout the building are in plain clothes.

Colonel Alfred F. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety, said: "I didn't know the men were on guard. If they are, it is on their own volition."

TRIED TO ROB GIRL.

Despite vigorous denials from heads of all departments, the American has learned that an attempt was made to rob a girl.

USE DRY FLAGSHIP FOR LIQUOR CACHE

New York, Dec. 30.—Twenty cases of liquor, alleged to have been part of a cargo confiscated in the seizure of a rum-runner, were found hidden in the hold of the dry navy flagship Hansen, customs officials declared today.

Search for the liquor was ordered when a discrepancy was discovered between the number of cases known to have been taken from the schooner Linnie Bell and the quantity turned over to the customs authorities.

FEAR REVERE BOY HAS HYDROPHOBIA

John Currier, thirteen years old, is seriously ill at the City Hospital suffering, physicians fear, from hydrophobia. His mother told hospital authorities that the boy was bit by a stray dog last September.

He was not stricken until two days ago, she said. The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Currier of No. 8 Burchard street, Hyattsville.

Science Leads
Wealth in the Air
One Ounce Typewriter
Sun and Moon Pull
By Arthur Brisbane

NOTHING IS as important as the meeting of scientists and their discussion at Cambridge, Massachusetts. Unusually, not one American in a hundred will know what was said or done at the convention. Last Thursday the wise men discussed the possibility of getting the carbon from the air. We dig in the ground for coal to make steam and electricity. We send away down to South America for nitrates-fertilizers. Above us in the air there is carbon by the billions of tons, enough to last forever, and nitrogen in quantities unlimited.

WE ALREADY KNOW something about getting nitrogen from the air, and probably shall soon have solved that problem on a big commercial basis. Henry Ford says he can do it now. If the government will let him take the Nitrolic Oxide from the air, how to get from the air carbon to use in our furnaces we don't know yet, but that will be discovered in time.

YOU CAN EVEN imagine a world congress in the future to limit the weakening and depleting of the atmosphere by taking out too much carbon and nitrogen for use here on the ground.

All the money the Rockefeller and Rothschilds ever dreamed about is like the widow's mite compared with the untold billions that float in the air above you.

THE SCIENTISTS study and discuss everything, big and little. When one man has finished his discourse on the possibility of taking power and fertilizer from the air, another takes from his vest pocket a typewriter weighing one ounce, a machine that he actually uses.

ANOTHER EXPLAINS that a human being are not "in significant" insects thrust here by a little speck of earth, that exist only for an instant. Nevertheless we think, as Descartes says, therefore we are something.

From one you learn that the sun and moon, pulling on the earth, dragging it out of shape by the power of gravitation, are responsible for earthquakes.

Another brings the bad news that the Grand Canyon of the Colorado is getting wider, the walls slowly wear away by erosion. Blye and bye that magnificent curiosity will have disappeared. But don't worry, it will look about as it does now for your descendants of a thousand generations from now.

And you know that were only forty generations, of fifty years each, from the birth of Christ.

SOMEbody OUGHT to take all the proceedings of that great scientific conference and prepare something interesting, not a dull condensation, to be printed in installments in all of the newspapers of the country.

Story of
Two Young Men

Two young men came to Boston recently and started at the same time in search of a room. Room after room had located they met and exchanged experiences. Both were paying the same rental, but one was living in cold, suffering, being, while the other shared a comfortable, cozy little home. Their methods of room-seeking differed—that was all. One had followed business directions to a certain building and had been given a windowless story and piece of paper pasted above door bells. The other man, however, by making his selection with the aid of the Boston American, found a room in the best of the West End under the heading "Furnished Rooms."

VALENTINO
SNEAKED
MOBBED
IN RUSS

Movie Star
Who Had to Run for It

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 29.—Scampering through the streets with a crowd of women at his heels, Rudolph Valentino, the seren's peppy petter, dodged into a Fifteenth street haberdashery store and escaped the unwished kisses of his fans. Police rescued him.

In a spectacular event in an American city, four women and a man were trampled and women fought women for the privilege of kissing the olive cheeks of the "Sheik" of the films.

From the second the cinema star stepped off his train he was mobbed by sentimental women. They pulled him, "kissed off" his hat, brushed their hands against his hair, fondled his clothing and actually fought to kiss him.

Then he bolted. His baggage was lost. He became separated from his traveling companion. His arms akimbo, his cigarette aloft, he fled the silver sheet bed before his admirers.

But his admirers pursued and stalled him as he passed. He was stalking a deer. And like a deer fled Rudolph.

The open door of the haberdashery store yawned welcomingly. Rudolph entered and slammed the door. The baffled women milled the establishment. A riot call was sounded.

The detectives ran to the door for Valentino's exit. They rushed the film star to City Hall. Progress was slow, however, because the mob still waited in thousands, crowded the protection.

The storm door at one of the side-walk entrances to the City Hall felt rather rough. But don't worry, it will look about as it does now for your descendants of a thousand generations from now.

CLOSE THE KLAN SLAYERS
CASE UP FOR JURY

Will Be Next Matter Which
Atty.-Gen. Allen Will Present
at Special Session

The Metropolitan Motors Company case will be taken up by Attorney-General Allen's Special Grand Jury on Tuesday to which day the probe of Pelletier-Coxley charges was adjourned, Monday being New Year's Day.

Four cases were presented the first week of the inquiry just closed—the Meyer Berman $50,000 extortion case, the Dorothy Cox case, the Peters "£120,000 kiss" case and the Samuel Waxman case.

In connection with the Waxman case, Mrs. Charlotte Broad Hughes, formerly a telephone operator at the Quincy House, was brought over from New York to testify.

The Supreme Court judges who tried and removed Pelletier reported him and his associates not guilty in the Charlotte Broad-Waxman case, but her appearance before the grand jurors yesterday indicated a new turn in the case.

Evidence at the Pelletier trial showed that Charlotte Broad had told Waxman for alleged breach of promise, but later absolved him in a letter which she mailed to an attorney from New York.

In his charges against Pelletier, Attorney-General Allen set forth that the accused hoped to get money as a result of the alleged relations between Waxman and the Broad girl.

THIEVES PICK ON POOR POLICE AGAIN
Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Break-thieves challenged the security of police headquarters here and, while receiving bullet wounds, entered and stole the choicest loot among the gifts of Christmas cigars and cigarettes. The tobacco was taken from the room of one of the clerks after a door was forced.

In order to reach the loot, the thief or thieves had to pass through the decorated burlap curtains of the sergeant's office, and directly by the sergeant's desk. This is the second burglary in police headquarters within the past few weeks.

Officials Declare the Expose of Mer Rouge Band Will Shock
the Entire Community

Bastrop, La., Dec. 30 (By the Associated Press).—State officials preparing evidence in the Morehouse parish kidnapping and murder case plan to present all the facts in their possession at the open hearing a week from today.

"The State will lay its cards on the table when the hearing begins," said one of the attorneys who will take an active part in the handling of the state's case. "I do not see how any grand jury can refuse to indict."

Men directing the inquiry declare it will prove one of the most sensational exposes of masked band operations ever unfolded in the South. Civil and military officials would not predict today what further arrests would be made in addition to the detention here of J. T. Burnett, former deputy sheriff and supplier of a local car plant, and of Dr. H. M. McKinn, former Mayor of Mer Rouge.

Positive denial was made at the office of the parish sheriff and county court clerk that additional affidavits or warrants had been issued.

Klan Denies Blame in
Mer Rouge Outrage

New Orleans, Dec. 30 (By the Associated Press).—The Louisiana organization of the Ku Klux Klan will send its own agents into Morehouse parish to investigate the kidnapping and killing of Watt Daniels and Thomas Richards, according to an announcement by a high official of the Klan. The action, he said, was decided on at a conference of heads of the State organization.

"I recently returned from Morehouse parish, where I discussed the outrage with many folks who know their community well," said the Klan official. "I know that the Klan is not to blame."

"We have no idea of setting up any defense at public hearings for anyone, and reports that the Klan is interested in obtaining brilliant attorneys for the defense of those arrested are not true."

Gallivan Warns
on Ku Klux

Washington, Dec. 30.—The Ku Klux Klan issue has been injected into the Democratic reorganization fight in the House.

Formally announcing his opposition to Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the North Carolina speaker, these men pronounce their absolute and unequivocal opposition to the Ku Klux Klan.

"Mark you, we are going to watch the Ku Klux Klan movements from Louisiana, where they come from Texas or from any other state, and they will get no support from the Democratic in the North unless at the caucus which will be called to select the candidates for speakership," he said.

He went on to say that he had been told by a man in a land where a man may call for a beverage and be reassured of getting the right stuff. Therefore, he is willing to take into himself a wife and live in peace.

HUSBAND TELLS OF 'STRONG ARM' THREAT

Minnie Caponi, East Boston telephone operator, was the star witness to defend her step-brother, Marcellus Caponi, who is being sued for divorce by Annie Di Stasio.

"My brother was too good to her," she said on the stand. "She knew she had him related around her little finger, and she tormented him every chance she had."

"Frequently, when we were all gathered at the dinner table, and she would tell him dishes and silverware. He would just look on and do nothing to defend himself. She used to push him around the house."

Mrs. Marcellus Caponi, 51 St. James street, East Boston, told Judge Flynn that her daughter-in-law told her to "get on with it" when she saw her husband and his wife.

Di Stasio alleges that his wife associated with the Black Hand members for the purpose of getting rid of him.

"My wife threatened me with strong arm men if I didn't interfere with her automobile ride on dancing parties," Di Stasio said.

Di Stasio asked in cross-examination what the meaning of "strong arm" was. Mrs. Di Stasio declared that she was referred to her own strong arm, and meant that she was able to support herself with them if she could secure a divorce from her husband.

Judge Flynn took the case under advisement after awarding the custody of the two small children to the mother, and providing that the father pay $11 per week toward their support.

ROBERTS' AGENTS
ON JOB

Extra Detail to Watch Terminal, Where Run-Runners Have Done Fine Business

Prohibition Enforcement Officer Roberts announced today that dry agents would put a stop at once to free lance bootlegging in the South Station.

The condition was exposed by the Boston American today. An extra detail of prohibition officers will be on hand over the New Year's period, watching the Narrow Gauge ferry at Rowe's Wharf, which is the inlet, and the South Station, which is the outlet of the traffic.

Crowds waiting for delayed trains—a not uncommon matter in the South Station—have been eager customers of the bootleggers, who offered single drinks for sale.

The method employed was to lead the prospect to a public room, and then in exchange for fifty cents, permit him to forget the woes of the delayed train service. A fair grade of hooch is being sold in this way.

Many of the customers came back for repeats. The word spread and a non-commuting element began to frequent the station for the purpose of getting their whiskey.

It is expected the station bootleggers will gather in great force to send customers home in happy mood for the New Year. Hence the additional precautions by the prohibition office.

POSTAGE REUNION

Wedding Party Routs Out Town Clerk on Sunday to Get License

"Bob" Savage didn't intend to see Genevieve Mitchell again after the "Post Girl" episode, but on his father's wedding he met her. But fate threw them together in an accidental meeting. In today's installment of his remarkable story Savage tells of this encounter and how it led to their elopement.

By ROBERT S. ("BOB") SAVAGE
My life in New Haven was very tame for the month after Genevieve Mitchell, beauty of the Midnight Frolic, jilted me. I continued my efforts to obtain some word from Genevieve, but she refused to answer.

Washington's Birthday fell on Wednesday this year, and was, of course, a school holiday.

A classmate of mine, the nephew of a famous Chancellor, invited me to go to New York with him over the holiday.

BACK TO BROADWAY.
My friend had fixed it up for the party in advance. Two beauties of the Frolic were to go with us.

Arriving in New York, my friend and I walked away the time until the Frolic should be out.

As we sat in the stage ante-room waiting for the two girls, I walked Genevieve Mitchell.

I looked at her and her beauty seemed greater than anything I had ever dreamed of.

As Genevieve looked at me tears came into her eyes.

POGO GIRL FORGIVEN.
I searched out my arms, she ran across the room and threw her arms around my neck and again we kissed.

"It was all a mistake, Bobbie darling," she cried, smiling through her tears. "I didn't want to marry you. She had forced me to give you up."

The party was soon arranged and another fellow secured for the girl.

My school friend had to drag me away from Genevieve by physical violence to get me to the "milk train" that was to take us back to New Haven in time for classes the next morning.

On Saturday, March 4, I arrived in New York to find an appointment with Genevieve. Several of the boys had come down to the hotel and we had all arranged to stage a party together.

VISION OF LOVELESSNESS.
Genevieve was the vision of lovelessness that she always was.

The party was as usual, a riotous affair, and the liquor had been forgotten the previous evening required marriage which had retarded me during the Christmas holidays. I proposed to Genevieve that we motor to New Haven and get married.

She accepted.

Genevieve asked Lillian ("Spunky") Ackers, Frolic beauty and her special chum, to come with us. I considered Wally Works, a schoolmate.

During the twenty-two mile drive to New Haven we had plenty of time to keep warm and maintain our enthusiasm at a high pitch. That I needed "brooch" to induce me to motor to New Haven, I was not. I was sufficiently aroused so that the wild horses couldn't have dragged me, drunk or sober, away from her.

ONSTACLE OVERCOME.
Upon our arrival in New Haven we made the remarkable discovery that it was Sunday and, of course, we could not get a marriage license.

Then Wally had an inspiration. He knew the town clerk at Milford, about ten miles away.

So to Milford we turned our weary feet and finally pulled in about nine o'clock in the morning.

Wally's friend proved amenable to suggestion and we obtained the license.

The Rev. Mr. Briggs was then summoned to perform the ceremony, which he did in about five minutes. That night "Spunky" Ackers went back to New York. Wally went to his room, and we registered at a New Haven hotel under an assumed name.

POWELL IN TWO ROLES AT SYMPHONY

John Powell, pianist and composer, appeared with the symphony with great success in each of the aforementioned capacities. For the first time in his career, he played both roles. Mr. Powell played the Prelude and Opus for piano and orchestra by Daniel Grier. Mr. Powell, formerly of Brooklyn, and now living in New York, Mr. Mason was in the audience to share honor with Mr. Montoux and Mr. Powell.

For the music, it can be said that it is decidedly academic with some very beautiful orchestration. If there had been less volume on the part of the orchestra, the music for the pianists would have stood out more vividly than it did.

The Philadelphia Negro for orchestra and piano by John Powell was played for the first time in Boston with the composer at the piano. The Philadelphia is full of old Southern melody, notably "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "I Want to Be Ready." It were not for the fact that it is impossible to picture any one at the piano other than Mr. Powell, it would be delightful to see it again soon, but it is one of those things that are sent essentially for the composer's own recreation.

The audience was very enthusiastic over it.

Mr. Montoux chose for the symphony the Haydn in B-flat major and his four charming movements pleased the house greatly.

The suite from the Ballet "The Rite of Spring" by Stravinsky, the program. The music is tuneful and the next time you have a opportunity of hearing it. It provided a solo for Mr. Laurent and his Fure. He played as beautifully as he always does, which is quite a praise.

The concert will be repeated tonight.

'DRIVER' SET HAS MINIMUM OF CONTROLS

A new "driver" set, using no resistances, is the latest modification of the superregenerative hook-up to appear. This set also has a minimum of controls, so may be seen from the diagram.

The chief controls are the variable condenser, C1, and the variable coupling of the two tuned circuits, L1 and L2.

The loop for this set is constructed of seven turns of bell wire on an insulator about three feet square. The turns should be spaced an inch or so apart.

As soon as the set is connected, a continuous whistle should be heard from the phone, similar to the whistle in the old regenerative when the set was allowed to oscillate. The coil is then turned slowly until a click is heard.

If it is not heard then, draw the two dual-lateral coils closer together. The coupling of these coils covers the amplification.

If a whistling note is now heard when the set is connected, reverse the connection of one of the dual-lateral coils. If the whistle is still absent, the set is incorrectly wired, or there is a short or open.

After signals have been caught, other adjustments should be made until signals are as clear and pure as possible. It is possible to still completely the whistling note in any superregenerative set so far designed, but it is possible to reduce it to a minimum.

A save trap, which may be attached to any set to cut out interference, will be described with diagrams in Monday's paper.

WORKERS URGE TAKING OVER COAL MINES

New York, Dec. 30.—Nationalization of the hard and soft coal mines of the country, a proposal of the United Mine Workers of America, would follow three determined in eight months' research work of the national committee, according to a statement today of Christ J. Golden, president of District No. 8, who made the plan public.

The union proposes a federal interstate commission of mine, at the head of which will be a secretary of mines, with a place in the cabinet. The administrative work would be handled by a national mining council.

The miners frankly admit the proposal is made as a defensive move, to guard against a nationalization plan which would be "unfavorable to the workers."

Golden placed a valuation on the nation's soft coal mines of between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000, and the anthracite industry was valued at $2,400,000,000.

Medbury Says It's Hard to Tell if a Man Is Divorced or Only Laid Off

By John P. Medbury

FOR years we have had meretricious credit associations but now we have a matrimonial rating bureau. Every worthwhile author is listed with it and the girls can tell where they stand before they go out with a man.

THEY can look at his rating card and find out if he's the sort of a fellow who takes you to the movies or the Palace.

SHED can also know in advance whether she will be taken home in a taxicab or on the street.

A GIRL looks at the rating of a guy and knows right away whether she should order the regular dinner or a la carte.

THESE reference cards also show if a man is a single and why.

NOT only that, but they tell whether he is a married man and whether at it or if he has been laid off.

YOU can tell at a glance if his wife is out of town where she is and when she is coming back.

IF he's a man who is true to a woman you can find out how many women he is true to.

THE cards tell you his salary and how much money he has in the bank. They also tell you what he makes and the balance of what he has to spend on you.

IF his rating doesn't suit you, there are a lot of cards of other guys that you can look at.

ALL you need is a little money and you can find some guy worth a million dollars who is a real swell fellow and a real B-T.

YOU can find out before you even meet the fellow just how he is.

One of a youth walked briskly into the Stock Exchange house of L. M. Prince & Company to give the tickler a dress dose of life. Theodore comes looking up and greeted him with "what are you putting on, tulle or beards hair?"

"Beards hair," my beards hair is gone," came the immediate reply.

"Do you want a job?" asked Mr. Prince.

"Sure."

"Can you start on Monday?"

"That was about eight years ago. Since then the tickler has been a youth was admitted to partnership in the firm, one of the recognized leaders in the investment bond field.

He is "Tommy" eight years ago. He is Thomas G. Campbell now.

How's that for rapid advancement?

I had a pleasant surprise this week when Herbert Finckler, Ben Franklin's leading banker, dropped in for a chat.

Let me say that I have knocked around the world a good deal and lived in many different towns and countries. Yet I know no place where it is easier to make warm, worthwhile friends than in California. Naturally, because my work I have made many acquaintances and friends in all parts of the United States. But I think the Californians have a happier knack of being friendly than are the people of any other state.

Perhaps I should qualify this by saying that while I have been giving visits to a few parts of the South, I have never made any extensive tours of investigation through that important part of our Commonwealth.

So to next year, and I am not at all sure that I will not prove as cordial and as friendly as the Californians.

Mr. Finckler has also arranged one important financial deal since he left New York, and which will greatly interest not only the people of the Pacific coast, but those in Utah.

He has hopes of arranging another and even more important deal, which will interest the Far West, but I cannot say.

As I emphasized in my writings during my trip through the United States this summer, one of the biggest industrial developments in the coming decade will be in the Middle West and the Pacific coast. High railway rates are hastening this evolution.

A reader sends this:

"The reason some people don't leave any footprints on the sands of time is that they spend too much time sitting down."

I hear that Wall Street's most spectacular young player has been getting a terrible severe drubbing in Mexican Petroleum. He is understood to have been very heavily short of this stock when it was run up more than thirty times the other day.

My guess is that this young gentleman will one day die of a heart attack, or rather later, go the way of all his phlegmatic predecessors, namely, broke.
